

ABSTRACT

A basketball training device can create a mental “target” when shooting a basketball. The device includes an annular shaped member that can be removably attached on top of a rim of a regulation basketball hoop. The annular shaped member includes a flange portion, which substantially covers the rim of the basketball hoop so as to provide a shelf-like image on a top portion of the basketball hoop.